++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Clearer and becoming cold overnight with frost in places.

This Evening and Tonight:
Any remaining rain or showers should be quick to clear this evening. Clouds then gradually breaking for a while overnight with frost likely to form in places, especially under any clear skies. The odd shower developing again later. Minimum temperature -1 deg C (30 deg F).

Saturday:
A bright start with the odd shower, but cloud amounts soon increasing bringing with it further showers, these potentially wintry at times. Becoming clearer and drier again overnight. Remaining cold. Maximum temperature 9 deg C (48 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Sunny spells with a few showers, perhaps turning wintry, on Sunday. Mostly dry with bright spells on Monday and Tuesday, but with some isolated showers too. Cold with overnight frosts.
